

E-Progress Review

Who is this service for?

Identified learning providers in the Learning and Skills sector in the North East, comprising FE Colleges and Specialist Colleges. ACL and WBL providers have access to CEL's online toolkit specifically tailored to their needs.

What service is available to you?

EPR Aims:

- Establish an internal dialogue around embedding of technology.
- Assist providers to gauge where they are in their journey to embedding technology across their organisation.
- Support self-regulation and self-assessment.
- Provide a tool that will highlight areas of good practice and areas for improvement.
- Establish a dialogue with the RSC to identify support and advice needs.

The service also aims to increase your autonomy in the whole process. RSC Northern will help you manage the process internally, but it is expected that you will take the lead in many phases of the review.

How will you benefit?

We acknowledge that learner recruitment, the teaching and learning profile, success rates and long term efficiency and costs savings are high on your agenda. Accordingly, we recognise that e-learning contributes towards improving an organisation's processes.

To maximise the opportunities and return on investment presented by e-learning, it needs to be fully embedded across the institution. The E-learning Progress Review (EPR) is an approach to strategy development and transformation that will enable you to progress towards a fully embedded status.

EPR Benefits:

- Supporting culture change.
- Increased involvement of key players within the organisation.
- An aid to self-assessment.
- A picture of where your institution is now in relation to cross-organisational implementation of technology.
- A better understanding of what 'embedded' means.
- An opportunity to reflect upon and evidence current good practice.
- Recognise and address opportunities for further developments.

EPR will provide your institution with a positioning statement based upon views of your senior and middle managers.

What does it cost?

The services we offer to RSC Northern supported providers are free of charge. There may be a charge for special events.

What are the advantages of using RSC Northern?

Using the services of your RSC Northern advisor will enable you to draw on informed, independent expertise based on knowledge, skills and effective practice elsewhere.
